

Steam driven

While the commercial age of steam may have passed with the demise of locomotives such as 5502 (above, left in 1946) but plenty of old locos still get on the boil thanks to the dedication and hard work of heritage groups such as the Cowra-based Lachlan Valley Railway, Lithgow-based Zig Zag Railway, Sydney-based 3801 Limited and Thirlmere's NSW Rail Transport Museum (left). Get along and get onboard during the 150th anniversary celebrations to help these groups continue to keep our rail heritage on track.
