

The Daily Telegraph report RailCorp feared tunnel collapse (9 Sept) claims that RailCorp refused to reveal if it still had insurance to cover any potential risks to Town Hall Station following the completion of the Cross City Tunnel.

This is incorrect. Asked whether RailCorp still had this insurance our written response to the Telegraph was: "No . . . construction has now been completed."

It was prudent business practice ensure insurance coverage during construction of the Cross City Tunnel given the proximity of this work to vital underground rail infrastructure.

This insurance was never a secret, as claimed by the Telegraph.